PROMOTIONS TO THE RANK OF FULL PROFESSOR

Jaleel AHMAD - joined the Economics Department in 1969 as Associate Professor and had previously been professionally associated with Brandeis, Harvard, and McGill. Dr. Ahmad's major field of specialization is international economics where he has made numerous important contributions. His primary contribution is in exploring the role of import substitution in the process of economic growth and its relationship to structure of production and trade, growth of exports, balance of payments and the evolution of comparative advantage. His research on import substitution, extending over a decade, has uncovered new dimensions by incorporating the structural consequences of import substitution into analysis of international trade. This reinterpretation of import substitution has opened future directions for theoretical and policy innovations in the field. His publications have appeared in books and professional journals of repute and his advice is sought regularly by international agencies, such as the United Nations and the O.E.C.D., among others.

Zalman AMIT - His unique contribution to Psychopharmacological research reflects the unusual scope of his expertise. Both a practicing clinician and an active research scientist, he has treated drug addiction in humans and conducted original experiments on the neurochemical basis of drug intake in animals. His work provides both theoretical justification and empirical support for the idea that positively reinforcing properties of drugs are the primary determinants of abuse liability. This concept is at the root of one of his principal interests - the development of a comprehensive treatment procedure for human alcoholics that incorporates the use of drugs proven to reduce alcohol consumption in laboratory animals. This work is of great potential significance both in terms of its obvious applied value and its contribution to understanding the neural basis of drug dependence. Dr. Amit has published extensively in scientific journals and is also co-author of a series of books on topics in behaviour modification.

Mervin BUTOVSKY - joined the faculty of Sir George Williams in 1961. He has the reputation of being one of the most inspiring teachers in the University. He has made significant contributions to the Montreal community, especially the Jewish community. He has served the University in numerous administrative capacities, including Acting Dean of the Faculty of Arts. An expert in Jewish Literature, he has been invited to serve for the past decade as an adjudicator for the Canada Council Writing and Publication Division.

David KETTERER - has been a member of the English Department since 1967. He is one of the foremost scholars in science fiction literature. Critics have acclaimed his book, New Worlds for Old, as "the first successful scholarly attempt to connect science fiction with 'mainstream' literature". His forthcoming study of Edgar Allen Poe promises to be an "important and original" study that "provides arresting and ... convincing new readings of many of Poe's works." In addition, he has two other books on science fiction literature which are forthcoming, and with the aid of a Canada Council Fellowship has completed a book manuscript on Mary Shelly's Frankenstein.

Campbell PERRY - is a major researcher in the field of hypnosis, his special interest being the study of hypnotic susceptibility and the role of motivational factors in hypnosis in both clinical and experimental settings. Much of Dr. Perry's work has been designed to investigate the basic processes that underlie hypnotic phenomena with special attention paid to the complex methodological problems inherent in hypnosis research. With a view to furthering our understanding of potential clinical applications of hypnosis, Dr. Perry has also conducted many laboratory studies on the use of hypnosis in pain control, weight loss and cigarette smoking reduction. Among his numerous scientific communications is a recently co-authored volume entitled Methodologies of Hypnosis: A critical appraisal of contemporary paradigms of hypnosis that has rapidly gained recognition as a major statement in the field.
